WARNING: External Sender! Exercise caution with links, attachments and requests for login information.

Pattern Day Trading (PDT) Rule is awful. Yet another way for the markets/congress to limit opportunity for the poor, while boosting the opportunity for the wealthy.

If a trader is fully capable of making winning trades consistently with a small amount of money in their account, they should have the right to do so.

- 1. How can you justify the PDT rule, when you allow unlimited trading with crypto?
- 2. How can you justify the PDT rule, when you allow unlimited gambling at casinos?

Abolish the archaic and discriminatory PDT rule for traders. Everyone should have a fair chance in the markets, not just the people who are already wealthy.

Thanks, Michael E